

WOMEN HAVE A RAINBOW OF CHOICES

Today marks the 50th anniversary of the Equal Pay Act and women across the country should celebrate the sweet choices and opportunity they have.

There is so much good news for women and girls that it is really unfortunate that the alarmists, traditional women's groups and some lawmakers in Washington continue to paint society and the workplace as hostile toward women and girls.

Women are not shortchanged; women are outpacing men educationally, soaring to the top of nearly every profession, running for office, influencing public policy, and acting as the breadwinners for the families.

We all know that making choices can be difficult. But it's the ability to choose a path based on personal values that makes us human.

As women today, we know we have more choices and opportunity than ever before. We aren't victims. Our earning potential is in our hands.
